Emphasis is placed upon effects of surface anisotropy which are not evident in two dimensional treatments. In particular we consider the excitation by a magnetic point dipole in detail. It turns out that the fields are determined by a scalar wave function which satisfies a mixed boundary condition involving a linear combination of the wave function, its normal derivative and its second order tangential derivative. The exact formal solution is first derived, and then the radiated far field and the surface wave far field are evaluated separately. Both the phase and the amplitude of the excited surface wave are dependent upon the direction of observation. Numerical results are given. The physical significance of this solution is discussed. A comparison is made between this problem and the theory of ship waves. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy.
