Only small quantities were given individuals, they in each instance agreeing to carefully safeguard the cotton, and select the seed for the use of themselves and their neighbors in the season of 1909. This has been generally done. Among the varieties distributed were Russell Big Boll, Cooks, Tooles, Columbia Long Staple. COTTON PICKER. During the year Mr. R. S. Wheeler, of Springfield, invented a cotton-picking machine, and at the request of the inventor the machine was given a test in a cotton field near Columbia on November 25th. While the machinery is yet crude and not perfected, the principle upon which it works is apparently the most promising that has yet been evolved. DRAINAGE. The question of drainage of the wet lands of the coastal section of the State continues to be a vital one, both from the standpoint of 3--A. C. I. health conditions and reclamation of lands for agricultural purposes. There are in the State 3, 116, 800 acres of swamp and wet lands that could be reclaimed at a reasonable expense. This Department has year after year been calling the attention of the General Assembly to this most important matter, and has urged the State to pass an Act creating a State Drainage Commission, and placing the expense of the drainage upon the lands themselves, by means of a small continuing tax for the retirement of long-term bonds. Such a plan has been successfully operated in several of...
